Highlights of Western Cuisine Skills Competition 2019

Mr. Lam Ching-wa, Executive Sous Chef, InterContinental Grand Stanford Hong Kong

"There has been a downturn of local hotel and catering business in the past two years for the pandemic. However, the negative impacts would be soon over with the control of the health concerns and the rebound of the global tourism. It definitely requires additional manpower with professional knowledge on western cuisine to meet the need of the hospitality and catering industry. This ApL course not only enables students to acquire basic/essential skills in preparing different types of western dishes in industry-standard training kitchens but also fosters their development of self-esteem, team work and communication skills which are essential in workplace."
